Well, here we are...still.

Who would have thought that 7 weeks after our initial notification on March 15th that we would still not be having worship in our building? That we would still be nestled down in our homes for safety?

Together, we have been on an internet adventure. We started out on FaceBook and quickly moved to a ZOOM gathering, like half the world. Thank you for your patience as this is all new. Thanks also to Matt Robb for being our guide through the tech side of things. It has been a fun venture as we gather, in our little boxes, to worship a God who can't be contained. All that is happening in our world right now can not limit the love God has for us.

People are joining in for worship. People are making contact with others who are not connected to technology. People are being checked on and concerns shared so that the body of Christ can stay as healthy in the midst of quarantine as it is when we join in person.

We wish we could say when all of this will be behind us but in all honesty, it probably won't be real soon. Even as more places begin to open their doors it will be with restriction on numbers and just how we are able to assemble. We continue to follow the instructions of those who know, the medical experts. Our goal is to not put anyone in danger unnecessarily.

We continue to stay in touch through our monthly newsletter, the Echo, through weekly E-Blasts, and through ZOOM meetings and worship. You can also find information and some fun "stuff" on our FaceBook page.

Please be sure to invite your friends, neighbors and relatives to join us as we gather. Where two or three are gathered God is there in our midst.

Continue to be in touch with the church office or with Pastor Mary at home, [610]-428-3800, if you or someone you know is in need of pastoral care. The sentence we keep hearing is more than just words... "We ARE in this together." Together with our community, our family of faith, and most importantly...with God.

Continue to pray for our national and state leaders; our medical personnel, first responders, and all the folks who are helping our lives go on; and, pray for our church and the world.

You are in my prayers,
Pastor Mary Gade, Transition Pastor
